FACULTY WORKSHOPS

1:00 - 2:00 PM

Title: Walking for Health

Description: Why this simple form of activity can be your best health insurance. This workshop will cover health benefits, technique & safety tips, warm-ups and post-walk stretches, interval walking, and heart rate monitoring. Wear walking shoes, comfortable clothing, and a hat that provides sun protection.

Location: G111
Facilitator: Sue Altenbach

Title: Faculty as Learners: Developing Thinking Communities

Description: "The shifting demographics of faculty ranks, expansion of faculty work, and the press for accountability and revenue production place new demands on today's faculty. Collaborating with other faculty members is one option for easing workload demands and reinvigorating faculty members as they approach their teaching and research" (Eddy, P.L. and Garza Mitchell, R.L., 2012).

Join us as we seek to develop a cross-campus Faculty Thinking Community here at COA. You will learn more about Thinking Communities and help develop a focus for this community launch in Spring 2018.

Location: C105
Facilitator: Carolyn Johnson

Title: Curriculum Development 101

Description: Overview of the Curriculum Development Process

Have an idea for a course? Want to fill a student need in our course offerings? In this workshop, you will learn about the overall curriculum development process from inception to state approval. You will also gain basic entry level knowledge of CurricuNet META.

Location: C109
Facilitator: Vinh Pham

Title: Canvas 101 - The Transition to Peralta's New Learning Management System

Description: This session will introduce the process for transitioning to Canvas next year and provide a brief overview of the platform

Location: D114
Facilitator: Jennifer Fowler

Title: Writing Assignments for Non-Writing Classes: Good for Students, Better, (& Easy) for Instructors

Description: Frustrated by the disappointing quality of student writing in your classes? Has that caused you to avoid writing HW? You're not alone. Yet, studies show that student success improves with more writing, not less; even bad writing, even writing that no one reads. This workshop will answer questions about this surprising phenomenon and introduce ways to re-incorporate writing back into your classes, writing that will improve student success and help make teaching fun again.

Location: C105
Facilitator: Jay Rubin

Our Mission
