for classes (S. Altenbach)	to high schools (and communities other than high schools?) <ul style="list-style-type: none">• In AMT, Esther Cheng does a lot of outreach. One of the important question for students is what profession/job they can get into the education. There is also need for coordinating across the college. Taking English as an example: many career education students can benefit from English classes for foundational communication skill.• Presentation by Mark Johnson, interim executive director of marketing for Peralta, discussing possibility of helping with outreach for particular programs and courses:<ul style="list-style-type: none">○ There are limited resources on COA for promotion work (Cathy Summa-Wolfe works as consultant, but her hours are limited)○ District provides “air cover” for application, enrollment process, and other logistics.○ The recent upgrade of Peralta website added Google Analytics; this gave a way to look at effectiveness of several recent outreach efforts.○ Recent outreach efforts included: direct mail campaign to people who applied to Peralta but did not complete registration in classes, boosted Tweets, and Google AdWords (some limitations in not being able to target our service area specifically)

2. Program Appraisal Policy (J. Smithson)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Matthew Goldstein notes COA faculty would be happy to participate in pilot programs for promotion. • Mark Johnson notes distinction between free promotion and paid promotion: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ○ Free promotion: Peralta has Twitter account with about 4,000 followers; any class flyers, etc. can be posted there for organic outreach (doesn't cost anything) ○ For boosted tweets, etc.: a budget source needs to be identified. • More to follow later: stay tuned; for access to Cathy for creating class promotion materials, go through Tim's office; email Mark Johnson (markjohnson at peralta.edu) for posts on Peralta Twitter accounts. • Remaining questions on direct mail campaign: Chabot mails class schedules to nearby residents; is this something Peralta can do? (A: Individual colleges could decide to do. Jennifer Folwer notes she has received postcard reminder about enrolling at CoA, as Alameda resident). Summary of Discussion: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Report from taskforce: May 1 is the deadline to have review implemented (from district academic affairs office). So, Dominique (institutional researcher), Frank (curriculum specialist), and Jayne (curriculum chair) went through the CoA programs, comparing them to programs in COCI (Chancellor's Office Curriculum Inventory). There are 70 programs in CoA system that are also in

3. Accreditation update (M. Goldstein)	COCI (active, current programs); there are also 15 old programs in Peralta/CoA system that are not active in COCI. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Senators Ko, Altenbach, Fowler, and Park participated in the question and discussion. Some notes below. This is an initiative from the district academic affairs office; participants from CoA feel slow, deliberate process is needed for program appraisal. So, for this cycle, we are looking for old programs (programs not completed by students, and not tied to courses that faculty teach) to put forward for review and deactivation. The 3-year timeline drafted by Vinh Phan was presented at curriculum committee; Matthew Goldstein exhorts the senate to continue pushing for this 3-year timeline for program appraisal process. Summary of Discussion: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The chair encourages senators to volunteer for site visit teams for accreditation.
